SALVATION SOLDIERS. They Come Near Having a Riot in a Church at Portsmouth.

A religious riot in Portsmouth was narrowly averted Sunday night solely by the prompt action of the city authorities.

A branch of the Salvation Army, recently organized in that city, has been holding services in the Methodist Protestant Church, the church at present having no pastor.

A faction of the church, headed by Rev. John K. Dixon, who was recently deposed from the pastorate of the church, missionary. I have been called to work owing to several previous affairs, opposed THE figure "13" seems to have figured in France, Belgium, England, Canada and this innovation, and accordingly Sunday night stormed the building while the army was holding open-air service in another portion of the city.

HON. JOHN C. NEW stopped over an hour in this city on his way home from Washington City, says The Times Star of Cincinnati. He came over the C. and O. "No other railroad in America is as much talked about as the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad," said he. "Comment is made upon its scenery, the smoothness of its tracks, battlefields and other historical points along the route, as well as the superiority of its train service and the clockwork regularity with which the schedule of the F. F. V. limited and other through trains is maintained. The Chesapeake and Ohio trains are the only modern ones lighted with electricity and carrying a through dining-car service to Washington and New York."
